I spoke to Joel Linzner of EA. I have known him for many years and made the Spielberg deal at EA.

He said he had a proposal almost ready to send to us, and asked whether this was the right time.

I told him that Bobby had come to the party, and if he didn't want to sleep through it, this was indeed the time.

His proposal will assume you are free of Activision, which he knows may not be the case. At a minimum it may be useful in judging the marketplace, and using against Bobby; and at a maximum it may be the place to go, assuming we can disentangle from your current contract.

More when I hear.

And, again, Happy Holidays and a Merry New Year.
